Academic and Professional Involvement – 25% of total

Describe your academic background, research experience, professional experience, volunteer activities, and other relevant involvement that have contributed to your interest in, knowledge of, or participation in the investigation, assessment, remediation, and management of contaminated sites in British Columbia.

Applicants should highlight experiences that demonstrate their commitment to the field, including coursework, research projects, internships, employment, professional development, community engagement, or involvement with industry and professional organizations.

Please limit your response to the area provided below and do not provide any additional attachments.
(Maximum 500 words)

Area of Research – 50% of total

Provide a summary of your research project or thesis topic. Explain how your work relates to the investigation, risk assessment, and/or remediation of contaminated sites, and describe its potential to improve current practices, processes, or decision-making in contaminated site management.

Applicants should also demonstrate how their research is innovative or forward-thinking. Examples may include advancing professional practice, addressing emerging contaminants, developing new technologies or methodologies, or supporting the mitigation and management of climate change impacts. Refer to the Scholarship Package Information document for detailed evaluation criteria.

Please limit your response to the area provided below and do not provide any additional attachments.
(Maximum 1000 words)

Academic Standing – 10% of total

Include an official copy of your most recent academic transcript, as well as official final transcripts from any previous degree programs, with your application. Transcripts must clearly demonstrate your academic standing and degree completion, where applicable.
